DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

GRANT COUNTY

Is Moral But Roads Are Not Responsible For the Morality.

Whisky Was Voted Out Two Years Ago and Since Then Grant Has Been Good.

AT ONE TIME SHE WAS BAD.

The News-Leader of last week prints the following:

"We remarked in this column last week in the good order which has prevailed in Washington county during the past few years as evidenced by our court records. In this respect we notice that Grant county goes one better, and a recent report of the grand jury recites that so far as they have been able to ascertain, there were no violations of law," and consequently no indictments were found by that grand jury. Grant county is certainly a good county. THE PEOPLE OF THAT COUNTY ATTRIBUTE THE GOOD ORDER AND ABSENCE OF CRIME TO GOOD ROADS MORE THAN ANY OTHER ONE THING. In the Hand Book of Kentucky, Grant county is spoken of as follows: "No county in the State has a better system of McAdams turnpike roads than Grant county. The mileage is a little under 500 miles, and it all belongs to the county and is kept in the highest condition by skilled workmen employed and paid by the county out of its treasury. The roads were made free some three years ago and have been improved each year since until they are second to no roads in the State. Every neighborhood and nearly every home in the county is reached by a good turnpike road. The roads are worked by machinery under a Superintendent, and the outlook for the future is excellent."

The Grant County Courier in its last issue says:

"The June term of the Grant Circuit Court for the year 1906 will go down in history as one of the most unique and satisfactory ever known in the county."

"When the Grand Jury had been impaneled and were about to be sent to their room Judge Lassing said: 'Mr. Jailer, are there any prisoners in jail whose cases need to be inquired into by the Grand Jury?' The jailer answered 'None.' Turning to the Clerk the Judge inquired, 'Have you the papers in any examining trials, to be referred to the Grand Jury?' And he, too, answered 'None.'"

"The Grand Jury was in session four days and at the end of that time came into Court and reported as follows: 'To the Hon. J. M. Lassing, Judge of the Grant Circuit Court:

"We, your Grand Jury, after being in session four days, state we have examined 41 witnesses and find no indictments. That as far as we are able to ascertain there has been no violations of the law. We have examined the public buildings and find them in reasonably good repair, and that we have no further business and are now ready to finally adjourn."

"This, June the 7th, 1906."

"THOS. B. RAMEY, Foreman."

"Laws are good things in themselves, and it is well for the community when they are enforced, but infinitely better when they are obeyed."

"Grant has been a law option county for a little over two years."

The Courier says editorially:

"Grant county people are now known for their piety while in former days they were looked upon as blood-thirsty, and the court docket was full of criminal cases; sad homes everywhere on account of some one being shot down or having his throat cut. But what a wonderful difference since the elimination of the liquor traffic. You don't hear of any more differences. It begins to look like we won't have very much use for a court house. It has made such a change that the people of Grant county will never suffer themselves to be imposed upon by issuing licenses permitting it to be sold."

[As stated above, for the past two years Grant county has been without saloon, but for twenty years prior to that time whisky was sold in Williams-town, the county seat, and during that period some of the most sickening murders this State has ever known were committed there, notwithstanding the fact that the county had "good roads" for the traveling public—for rubber-tired vehicles, pedestals, for all "comers and goers." But it also might be added that Grant county, prior to two years ago, had some wide, smooth thoroughfares which led men to hell. At one place in Williamstown during the last twenty years of the saloon's reign, thirty-three murders were committed. The people at Williamstown called this spot "Dead Man's Corner."

The Sun is an advocate of "good roads," but it believes in placing "great obstructions" between all mankind and the barroom.—Ed.]

BEN JOHNSON COMPLIMENTED

By Congressman Smith—Says He Will Receive Many Republican Votes.

A dispatch to the Louisville Times from Washington City on last Friday evening says:

David H. Smith, who retires from Congress at the expiration of his present term, is very much pleased with the nomination of Ben Johnson as his successor. Mr. Smith said this morning: "Ben Johnson has been nominated to succeed me, and that he will be elected there can be no doubt. He was nominated without opposition, and our majority in the district is large. He will not only have the cordial support of all Democrats, but, if my information is correct, he will receive many Republican votes, even as against anyone the Republicans may nominate."

Minority Leader Williams has expressed regret that Mr. Smith will no longer be in the House, as it will be hard to find as good a lawyer to succeed him on the Judiciary Committee. Mr. Smith, however, says the Fourth district will be properly represented by Mr. Johnson.

EXPRESS COMPANIES

Indicted by Hardin County Grand Jury.

Elizabethtown News: The Hardin county grand jury got after the Adams Express Co. with a very sharp stick last week and returned quite a number of indictments against it for shipping liquor from Elizabethtown to Sonora and other prohibition points in the county in violation of the law. It is evident that this practice is to be stopped as the Commonwealth's Attorneys throughout Kentucky are having such shipments as those mentioned in this county investigated. It is now not only against the law for express companies to ship intoxicants of any kind into prohibition territory, but it is equally against the law for them to bring it into prohibition territory from other States. As heretofore published in this paper the express companies have issued circulars to the effect that they will not receive in their offices for shipment any kind of drink beverage for prohibition territory.

Incorporated.

Lebanon Enterprise: Articles of incorporation were filed with the county clerk during the past week incorporating Bricken Bros. Co. The principal place of business of the company is to be in this city, and the corporation is to begin with the filling of the articles and continue for a period of twenty-five years. The company will manufacture, bottle, sell and deal and handle all kinds of soft drinks. The capital stock is $2500, divided into 250 shares of $10 each. At present the stock is owned by Geo. A. Bricken, Sr., W. E. Merkle and Geo. A. Bricken, Jr. Mr. Merkle is president, Geo. A. Bricken, Sr., vice president and Geo. A. Bricken, Jr., secretary and treasurer.

John C. Atkinson, formerly Mayor of Henderson, died yesterday at his home in that city after an illness of several weeks.

DO DREAMS COME TRUE?

County Clerk W. F. Booker Tells The Sun About A Dream He Had Many Years Ago.

None of us will admit that we become superstitious over dreams, but all of us are; we won't tell our "bad" ones before breakfast, and we will tell all our good ones just as soon as we glide out of dreamland into reality, if we can succeed in arousing the household.

County Clerk Booker doesn't "believe in dreams"; of course, he doesn't; but ever since he was a boy, way back yonder, over thirty years ago, he has prayed each evening to be delivered from "nightmares," and after you read this story through you will admit that Mr. Booker has a right to "believe in 'em"—nightmares—just a little bit.

When he was about twenty years old he was employed at Grand Gulf, Miss., as clerk in a large shipping concern.

Capt. Peas, who owned "The Concordia," one of the handsmen, as well as one of the best boats on the Mississippi came to Mr. Booker one day and offered him a position on the boat as clerk. Mr. Booker says that at that time the height of his ambition was to be the Captain of a fine boat on the Mississippi, and, of course, he accepted the position, but asked Capt. Peas to hold the place open for him until he came home to visit his parents. This the Captain agreed to do. Mr. Booker came home in September. His father lived in a house on the lot on which Judge Selmon's residence is now situated. One afternoon, just a day or two before Mr. Booker was to leave for Mississippi to enter upon his duties as clerk on board "The Concordia," he went up stairs at his father's home here in Springfield to "nap," a bit. Mr. Booker says that he doesn't know how long he had been asleep, but in a dream, shockingly realistic, he heard a terrific explosion, he saw the splashing of water, and he saw Capt. Peas and his crew sink beneath the great waves of the Mississippi. Mr. Booker says that he hurriedly went down into the room where his mother was. He says that she said to him: "What is the matter, my son, you are ghastly white!" "Why," he replied, "I dreamed that 'The Concordia' blew up and Capt. Peas and the entire crew were killed."

Mr. Booker tells us that he tried all the afternoon to dismiss the matter from his mind but that he could not. One afternoon a few days later the stage coach brought the old Louisville Courier, and on the first page, first column, Mr. Booker says there was an account of the destruction of "The Concordia," the boilers having exploded, Capt. Peas and every member of his crew being killed.

Now, what is your opinion of dreams? If you should dream to-night that there were ten pounds of gold beneath the hundred tons of rock in the bottom of the Little Beech what would you do?

303

Majority for Local Option In Harrodsburg Last Friday.

Harrodsburg, Ky., June 15.—Harrodsburg went dry to-day by the decisive majority of 303 after one of the most vigorous campaigns ever waged by the local option people.

Every ward was against whisky. The colored ward, that had been conceded to the other side by 100, went dry thirty majority. All business houses and banks were closed, and proprietors and clerks worked for local option.

Scores of farmers left ripening grain and came to assist. Bells are ringing, whistles blowing, and the oldest town in Kentucky is wild with excitement. The Democrat and Herald have both issued extras, announcing the victory.

Marion County.

Falcon: Mr. James Arthur Dant and Miss Mary Mildred Osborn were married at a Nuptial Mass at St. Augustine's Catholic church, in this city, Tuesday morning. Rev. J. A. Hogarty officiating.

Mr. Owen Mattingly, age 23 years, died at his home at Chicago, Friday. He leaves a wife to whom he had been married only about a year.

Mr. Thomas Yowell, of Springfield, and Miss Myrtle Wayman, of the Bradfordville neighborhood, were married at the Baptist parsonage, this city, June 12, by Rev. A. C. Graves.

The examining trial of Capt. N. R. Christie for whipping Katie Smith, the negro girl who lived at his home, was held Tuesday and resulted in Mr. Christie being held on a bond of $100 to await the action of the grand jury.

As usual the Commencement exercises of Loretto Academy and St. Mary's College were attended by large numbers of people who greatly enjoyed the interesting exercises. The former was held Tuesday and Miss Edith Wathen, daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. B. Wathen, Jr., of this county, was one of the graduates. The College exercises were Wednesday.

CHARLIE McCHORD

Boomed For the Democratic Nomination For Governor.

Louisville Herald: Another surprise was sprung in Democratic political circles last night when it became known that C. C. McChord, Chairman of the Railroad Commission and one of the best known politicians of the State, had been agreed upon by one of the factions in the party as its candidate for Governor. It is said that a conference was held yesterday afternoon, which was attended by about twenty-five prominent party leaders, and it was agreed that Mr. McChord is the strongest anti-machine candidate available. Whether Mr. McChord will consent to make the race remains to be seen, but his closest friends insist that he will.

Mr. McChord has long been considered a prospective candidate for Governor, and has been prominently mentioned in this connection during the past two years. As Chairman of the Railroad Commission he has brought about legislation which has been of benefit to the shippers, and he is highly regarded by the business interests of Louisville and Kentucky. He has busied himself with the rate question during his two terms as Commissioner, and is considered one of the best posted men in the State.

It is said that if Mr. McChord is a candidate he will receive the support of the Louisville organization, including W. B. Haldeman and his papers, the Times and the Courier-Journal. It is also said that he is the personal choice of Henry Watterson, editor of the Courier-Journal, whose opposition to Gov. Beckham, and what is termed the "close corporation of office seekers at Frankfort," is well known.

Senator McCreary, it is also said will cheerfully support Mr. McChord in the event that Ollie James or Senator Blackburn does not make the race.

Cooney-Mattingly.

Lebanon Enterprise: A social event of more than usual interest in the St. Mary's neighborhood, was the marriage Thursday, at St. Charles, of Prof. John M. Cooney, of St. Mary's College, and Miss Margaret Mattingly. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. J. Pike, during a Nuptial Mass, in the presence of a large number of admiring friends.

The attendants were Prof. Doud, an intimate friend of the groom, and Mr. Paul Mattingly, brother of the bride. The newly married couple took the afternoon train for Louisville where they will spend a few days with the Home Comers, after which they will make an extended Eastern tour. Returning they will go to Owensboro, where they will make their future home. Though quite young, Prof. Cooney has done considerable teaching and is known as a thorough classical scholar and an able educator. His bride is the daughter of Mr. Ben F. Mattingly, of St. Mary's, and is one of the most estimable individuals of that community. Both have a host of friends in the county and over the State who wish them many years, and much happiness.

ELECTION BRUSH GROVE

Will Be Called For August 25 to Take Sense of Voters on Local Option.

The county court of Washington county will be petitioned to call an election for Saturday August 25, to take the sense of the voters of the county as to whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold in the county. The petitions are now being circulated, and will be presented to the court at once.

DRYS WIN BY 1,600

In Henry County; Five to One Local Option.

Newcastle, Ky., June 16.—Henry county voted five to one for local option to-day, the anti-saloon men sweeping the liquor interests off the field by a majority of 1,600. This includes Newcastle, which was carried a few weeks ago by the liquor element, but now becomes dry. The better class of people in the county took a great interest in the fight and are much elated by their victory.

"WE NEED BRYAN IN OUR BUSINESS"

Sam Jones Says Time Is Ripe For A Change.

Henderson, Ky., June 17.—Five thousand persons heard the Rev. Sam Jones this evening at the Henderson Chautauque. His subject was "character." His discourse was of his usual rambling kind, at times punctuated with rhetorical flights and also abounding in humor. He held up President Roosevelt and W. J. Bryan as the men of the world with peerless characters. He said that "Teddy" has made a good President, but that "things are now ripe for Bryan to succeed him, as we need Bryan in our business."

CLAY

That is Valuable.—Mr. Cheatham Says There Are 2,000 Acres.

Mackville, Ky., June 18.—Editor Sun:—I send you several pieces of silicate found on my land one mile South of the Williamsburg and Mackville turnpike. It is claimed that it is of a finer grade than that found in the Glens Creek neighborhood. It was reported some time ago by Louisville parties that there were 1000 acres of such land. I believe there are 2000 acres. When you find it is like stiff putty. The more you work it the tougher it gets. It will always stay soft and not set if kept damp. If worked it will get tough and turn to stone. You can put it in an oven where it is exposed to heat and it will set in a few minutes. It will not crack when subjected to heat.

Respectfully,
W. P. CHEATHAM.

Farm For Sale.

A farm of 128 acres, in good state of cultivation, extra good dwelling, good barn and all necessary outbuildings, situated near Loretto and St. Rose turnpike, six miles from Springfield. Plenty of tobacco land. Call on J. R. or Frank Montgomery, or write to Mrs. Betty Blanford, R. F. D. No. 2.

New Cure for Epilepsy.

J. B. Waterman, of Waterbury, Vt., Rural free delivery, writes: "My daughter, afflicted for years with epilepsy, was cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills. She has not had an attack for over two years." Best body cleansers and life giving tonic pills on earth. 25c at C. J. Hayden's drug store.

Will Do Better Than 5 to 1 Says Thad. Cheatham.

Many from here went to the 25c. 25c. to hear Judge Ike Thomas and W. F. Grigsby speak on the local option question. There was a very large crowd present, Mass, Moorehead, Sullivan, Polin and Chaplin were all represented by some of their best citizens. All seemed to enjoy the speaking very much. Judge Thomas was full of wit and logic, and his speech was sufficient to convince the most skeptical.

Local option is gaining ground in this section. There are a few that are for the saloon and its corruption, and they are boldly saying that Brewing Companies, still houses and saloons will put up money enough to buy this election in Washington county. They are only in hopes that they will. That class of men are not interested in the welfare of the county or its people, but is self and they want to "accidentally get hold of a few."

Whisky men talk like they are the only men that can sit in the saddle, stay up at night and hustle for votes, but they are mistaken. They are playing against all odds in the business and the way that we will cut their cords will be surprising. They might sell their money, whisky and literature flow like Tennyson's Brook, but it would only create a stronger sentiment in favor of local option. I made the assertion a few weeks ago that Brush Grove would be 5 to 1 in favor of local option. I now think it will even be stronger. It seems like a one-sided affair. Whenever the election comes Brush Grove will do her part in burying Brewing Companies, still houses and saloons and their corruptions so far in the darkness of defeat that they will never be spoken of again, only by the recalling of their darkest deeds.

THAD. CHEATHAM.

HUBERT VREELAND

Announces For Secretary of State—He Is Popular With Masses.

So much encouragement has been given Hubert Vreeland, our present active and progressive young Commissioner of Agriculture, to offer himself again as a candidate for a State office, that for many months he has decided to become a candidate for Secretary of State. It certainly looks like he has won for himself the backing of the farmers of Kentucky for whatever he may seek, and in recognition of his efforts in their behalf since his election as State Commissioner thousands of them have urged him to offer for another State office, since the Constitution makes him ineligible for re-election. Mr. Vreeland has accomplished something in an office that was created for the farmers, but which had been of very little benefit to them, and it is refreshing to the Democrats of Kentucky when they find "public servants who devote all their time and thought to fulfilling the duties of their office with energy and intelligence."

Mr. Vreeland is the youngest of the present State officials, and until the last State election had never been a candidate for office. Although it was not until after his election as Commissioner of Agriculture by a majority of 26,000, next to the largest majority received by any candidate in the State primary, although opposed by two prominent candidates, who made most vigorous campaigns, Mr. Vreeland has a personal acquaintance probably not surpassed by any other young man in Kentucky, extending to scores and hundreds in every one of the 119 counties in Kentucky. He is a brother of John W. Vreeland, publisher of the Farmer's Home Journal, and at the head of the Democratic Extension Committee in Louisville and Jefferson county, and of Graham Vreeland, managing editor of the Courier-Journal, who for ten years has been the Legislative correspondent of the Courier-Journal at Frankfort.

The Democratic nominations for State offices will be made again by State primary in November, and Mr. Vreeland is expected to make an active campaign. Up to the present time he has no opposition.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Of a German Traveler Lost in Yellowstone Park—Sees Wonderful Sights.

Helena, Mont.—Without garments of any kind suitable to withstand the rigors of wintry weather, Max Haw, a German journalist and newspaper man, arrived in Helena, fresh from a nine-day tour of hardship in Yellowstone National park.

Without friends or acquaintances of any sort, and without a dollar in his pocket, Mr. Haw has had an experience which he will never forget. He is one of a few men, and the only German writer who has ever attempted a winter tour of the park.

Haw was compelled to walk from Mammoth Hot Springs to Livingston, where he pawned his gloves, watch and shoes for four dollars. This he used in obtaining sufficient food to keep body and soul together while he made his way from Livingston on to Helena, covering the entire distance on foot.

He is a representative of the Berlin Illustrated News, Konigsche Volks Zeitung, and a number of other German papers, which commissioned him to come to the United States to study German-American conditions, and especially to tour the park in winter.

Haw came to the park, and in spite of the efforts of the commandant at Fort Yellowstone to dissuade him, undertook the winter journey into Wonderland, so fraught with hardship and peril.

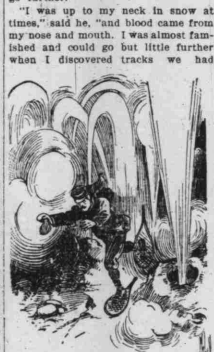

Haw arrived in New York in February and had letters of introduction to various German newspapers in Chicago and St. Paul, and made his headquarters in the latter place.

It was arranged that Haw should be accompanied by a German soldier named Reinholdt, and a man named Graham, one of the best known park guides. The entire party were outfitted with skis, and the start was made. The weather was cold and the landscape was covered with snow.

Upon his return the faithful correspondent discovered that his notes, papers and sketches were missing. He immediately set out alone to find them. He went back over the trail, but they were nowhere to be found. He soon discovered that he was walking in a circle, that he had lost every idea of the way he had come, and was hopelessly lost.

Lost in Upper Geyser Basin in the dead of winter without food or proper clothing was up to my neck in snow at times," said he, "and blood came from my nose and mouth. I was almost famished and could go but little further when I discovered tracks we had made during the forenoon. Reaching one of the geysers I began washing my hands and face in hot water, when suddenly I heard a rumbling sound, and there was a big eruption of all the geysers in the vicinity.

ON EVERY SIDE THE GEYSERS BURST FORTH.

"Frightened, I rushed away with all speed possible, and from a distance beheld one of the most wonderful sights man ever saw—eruption of geysers in the dead of winter. I followed the tracks I discovered, and reached Fountain the following morning, half frozen, and starving."

The leading Germans of Helena took Haw in charge, and will care for him until he can make suitable arrangements for his return to St. Paul.

Sore Muscles.

Prominent athletes throughout the country find that the best treatment for sore muscles after severe exercise or hard work of any kind, is a hot bath at bed time, which opens the pores. This should immediately be followed with an application of Chamberlain's Pain-Balm vigorously rubbed into the skin. This liniment removes all stiffness and soreness and has become a favorite rub down, as it acts promptly and keeps the muscles in excellent condition. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

SPARROW.

Farmers are all through setting tobacco and report a fair stand with all crops that were put out this year. Harvest is fast approaching which bids fair to be a bountiful one.

The farmers are very busy plowing corn which is doing fairly well at present. Oats are looking well and bid fair to make a good crop.

Locust are quite numerous in this vicinity. There is a lot of difference as to how long it has been since they were numerous. Some say fourteen years and some seventeen years, but according to my memory it has been thirty-five years. If some of the correspondents have any records as to how long it has been we would be glad to hear from them.

Mrs. W. R. Moore, who has been confined to her bed for about eight months, was glad to note is out taking drives.

Mrs. J. D. Sutherland, of Sycamore Valley, spent from Friday until Sunday with her parents at this place.

Miss Jappa Barnett has returned home after spending two weeks with her mother, Dr. W. T. Barnett, of Mackville.

Mrs. Wilkes Morgan has returned to her home in Louisville after spending a few weeks with her mother at this place.

W. R. Moore and family spent Sunday with his mother at Leathers Store.

Mrs. Bettie Morris entertained quite a number of her children and grandchildren last Sunday. There were about twenty-five present.

W. M. Crossfield and daughter, Miss Cleo, attended children's day exercises at Friendship church last Sunday.

H. G. Dadisman attended court at Lawrenceburg last week.

Miss Hattie Cox spent Thursday night and Friday with Mrs. W. C. Cammick.

Mrs. David Yocum spent last Monday with her mother at this place.

B. F. Richardson and wife, of Glenboro, moved to our midst last week.

Born, to the wife of Robert Martin, June 14, a girl.

Mr. Conn Campbell and wife, of Elmdale, Kansas, are visiting relatives at this place. Mr. Campbell was born in Kentucky and left the State about thirty-five years ago and this is his first visit home.

ing parents, skilled physicians and kind friends could give. The funeral services were conducted at the house on Thursday afternoon by Rev. J. F. Johnson, after which the remains were interred in the Fairmount cemetery. The body was robed in white and rested in a white casket which was carried by the following young ladies: Misses Ora and Pearl Dadisman, Nannie and Edie Blackson, Mary Lee Sargency and Allie Long. Edhel will be missed at home and in social circles as she had many friends and admirers. Father, mother, sisters and brothers too sad, very sad indeed, to give one up so dear, but just think for a moment and see her in the realms of Bliss then you will cease to shed a tear. The bereaved family and friends have the sympathy of the entire community.

Died, at her home near Fairview, Mrs. Minnie Snider, wife of Mr. Lev Snider, on June 14. She is survived by her husband and one child. The funeral was conducted at Fairview the following day by Rev. H. P. Hatchett, after which the remains were interred in the Fairview cemetery. Mrs. Snider was formerly Miss Hickman and was raised near here, she has many friends who join in extending sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Total imports of merchandise and dry goods at the port of New York for the week ending Saturday were valued at $10,908,355.

Secretary of State H. V. McChesney yesterday announced his candidacy for the office of Auditor of Public Accounts.

Hung by the Fingers.

Utica, N. Y.—Suspended by three fingers of his right hand for 30 minutes in an unoccupied house, unable to touch his feet to the floor or to release himself, was the agonizing experience of Henry Stouard, a carpenter, in Urdilla. Stouard was inspecting a house which he contemplated occupying and he ascended to the attic, drawing himself up through a manhole covered by a tight-fitting trapdoor. In descending the door dropped upon the fingers of one hand, pinning them, just as he was about to drop to the floor, only a few inches below his feet. His weight and struggles only wedged the door against his fingers the tighter. He was unable to raise the door with his other hand and there he hung for half an hour, until neighbors heard his groans and discovered his unconscious form suspended from the trapdoor.

Child Roasted by Young Girl.

York, Penn.—Lillian Thorman, a 13-year-old girl, pleaded guilty to killing Helena Dorsey, a three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dorsey. On Washington's birthday the Thorman girl, having become angered at something the little Dorsey child had done, placed her on a red-hot stove. The child died later. The Thorman girl added: "I did it because I have the devil in me."

The young prisoner will be sentenced on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Hard Fate.

Dora—How miserable Arthur looks since I rejected him!

Clara—I don't wonder, poor fellow. Now he'll have to work for a living—Titi-Biti.

TALK ON COAL

It's hard to burn
Bad Coal in the Summer.

"Split Your Coal Bill."

"Easy said, but how?" We sell coal and give coal advice. Advice is cheap but coal costs money. Why not then buy that superior quality we deal in? It goes farther, costs no more and heats better. If that isn't an inducement, there isn't any. We've told our story and up to you to buy coal of us and save money.

Full Weight

Is a mighty comforting thing to have when it's on something you have to buy the year round. "Solid men" like our "solid reputation," get coal of us because they get a full ton of coal for every dollar bargained for. Then again taking the high grade of our coal the year round, it's to your interest to buy here. Give us that next order and make sure you get the best.

We Will Capture Your Trade

If you give us but a single order. We speak from experience. There isn't one you can point to who buys coal from us but will recommend coal sold by us as being A1 in every respect. Never a complaint about quality, price or service. Fine record, isn't it? Add your name to the list and buy our coal hereafter.

THE MARKET

Warm Weather
Coal Ought to be the BEST.

WOOL! WOOL!

I will want your wool this season and of course
I will have the price. Now is the time to sell.

HAULING

I have bought the transfer business of Mr. Allen, and will continue the business. When you have any hauling to do telephone me.

I PAY HIGHEST PRICES FOR HIDES AND FURS.

CHAPLIN.

Our little city has been having a Home-Coming week of itself lately. The boys and girls who have come home from school to spend their vacation and the many visitors have made the little place quite lively.

Rev. Harrison delivered two special addresses on "The Model Church" Sunday morning and evening at the Christian church. The music was also a special feature. Miss Foreworth, of Bowling Green, favoring the audience with beautiful vocal selections.

Miss Grace Sutherland gave a house-party in honor of Miss Norris Bodine recently. These present to enjoy the hospitality of this little lady were: Misses Norris Bodine, Rebecca Graham, Sue Rose Neale, Cleavie Neale, Sue Moores and Mary Neale.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rush have as guests Mrs. Minnie Broadhurst and daughter, of Winchester, Mrs. Annie Duncan and three children, of Mt. Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Stiles, of Hodgenville, Miss Lucille Stiles, of Hodgenville, Mr. and Mrs. Foreworth and two daughters, of Bowling Green, and Mrs. Bland.

Mr. Earl Roby spent Saturday and Sunday with friends here.

Mrs. Burton Williams and three children, of Colorado, are here visiting their many relatives and friends.

Misses Sally Mae Williams, Stella Houtchens, Janette Dawson, Ethel Bush, Alice Pulliam, Messrs. Jim Sutherland, Stanley Dawson and W. E. Houtchens have returned home from school.

Miss Rebecca Graham, who has been visiting her aunt, returned to her home near Harrodsburg Monday.

Deploable Accident.

Kentucky Standard. A sad death was that of McKinley Fryrear, the little five-year-old son of Mr. Martin Fryrear, of the Cedar Creek neighborhood, which occurred last Saturday morning. The little fellow was the possessor of several kittens which he was very fond of. The animals were quartered in a barn near the residence and the little boy went there frequently to fondle his pets. The barn was filled with shucks and other inflammable material and last Saturday when the child went to visit his kittens it is supposed that the door of the barn closed behind him and he lighted a match to dispel the darkness. In this way the shucks, etc., were ignited and the barn was soon in flames. When the conflagration was discovered it was too late to render assistance to the child and he was burned to a crisp. He was a bright, manly little fellow and the pride of his parents, who have the sympathy of their friends in their bereavement. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Cedar Creek last Sunday.

Twenty Reasons Why You

Should Oppose the Saloon.

REASONS.

1. It never builds up manhood but tears it down.
2. It never beautifies the home, but often wrecks it.
3. It never increases one's usefulness, but lessens it.
4. It never allays the passions, but inflames them.
5. It never stills the tongue of slander, but loosens it.
6. It never promotes purity of thought, but poisons it.
7. It never empties almshouses and prisons, but fills them.
8. It never protects the ballot-box, but defiles it.
9. It never makes happy families, but miserable ones.
10. It never prepares one for heaven, but for hell.
11. It never prompts to right doing in anything, but to wrong.
12. It never diminishes taxes (with all its revenue,) but increases them.
13. It never renders the Sabbath quiet, but desecrates it.
14. It never protects our property or personal safety, but endangers them.
15. It never helps one to get a good insurance policy on his life, but militates against it.
16. It never creates ambition and thrift, but invites laziness, profligacy, poverty, idleness and crime.
17. It never builds up the church, but peoples the station house, prisons and chain-gangs.
18. It never refines character nor promotes Christian grace, but is a destroyer of the soul.
19. It never teaches honesty and uprightness, but incites the incendiary to apply the midnight torch.
20. It never protects a man, but robs him of his money, his family happiness, his good name, his hopes and all endearments of life.

HILLSBORO.

Mr. L. M. Clark is still on the sick list.

Rev. J. A. Simms preached to a large audience last Sunday.

Several from this place attended church at Rockbridge Sunday.

Mr. Will Smith and family spent Sunday at Jenkinsville.

Mrs. Mary Hines and daughter, Miss Agnes, spent Sunday at Williamsburg.

Mr. J. A. Coulter and wife and Mrs. Etha Coulter spent Sunday with J. M. Montgomery and family.

Mr. J. M. Shields and wife spent Sunday with Mr. John Jenkins.

Mrs. Mary Scott and family visited Mr. Bill Scott and family Saturday night and Sunday.

Several from this place attended church at Pleasant Grove Sunday.

The farmers around here are all through setting tobacco.

Misses Mollie and Annie Hines, of Booker, were the guests of their cousin, Miss Agnes Hines, last Friday night.

Rev. W. E. Sutherland, who has been sick, is better at this writing.

Mr. Thomas Coulter, of this place, and Miss Flossie Hardin, of Williamsburg, were married by Rev. J. A. Simms Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The bride is a daughter of Mr. Dick Hardin, while the groom is a son of Mr. J. A. Coulter, a prosperous farmer of this place. We extend our congratulations.

Bridge Repaired.

Kentucky Standard. Messrs. John Blaine and Mike Hanrahan have completed repairing the bridge that spans Mill Creek on the Springfield turnpike, several miles east of town. This bridge for some time past has been in a very dangerous condition and the recent repairs will be greatly appreciated by the traveling public.

Outwits The Surgeon.

A complication of female troubles, with catarrh of the stomach and bowels, had reduced Mrs. Thos. S. Austin, of Leavenworth, Ind., to such a deplorable condition, that her doctor advised an operation; but her husband fearing fatal results, postponed this to try Electric Bitters; and to the amazement of all who knew her. Guaranteed cure for torpid liver, kidney disease, biliousness, jaundice, chills and fever, general debility, nervousness and blood poisoning. Best tonic made. Price 50c at C. J. Haydon's drug store. Try it.

Gen. Dalsheim has been appointed to succeed the late Gen. Desrrier as Military Governor of Paris.

Dowie Testifies.

Chicago, June 15.—John Alexander Dowie, testifying in the hearing of the Zion City controversy in Judge Landis' court this afternoon, told of an instance when his body and soul became separated and in his spiritual being he distinctly saw his own dead body lying beneath a shroud. At another time, he asserted, his spirit left his body and the Angel Gabriel and the Virgin Mary were present in the realms visited by his spirit. The queer narrative of life and death was brought out by Attorney Newman during cross-examination of Dowie. Following the vision, the witness continued, two acquaintances came to him and told him they had dreamed that he was to be assassinated. Then, while alone in the Tabernacle, came a voice warning him to "Arise and go." "I went," said Dowie, "and while on my way home I heard an explosion. The next day I found that my enemies had tried to kill me with dynamite. The back of the Tabernacle had been wrecked."

Dowie denied in the course of the examination that he had ever represented himself as Elijah, the Restorer, subsequently qualifying the statement by saying he told his people he "came in the spirit and power of Elijah." On September 18, 1904, he said, he proclaimed himself as the "First Apostle," but when pressed for an explanation as to how he received the commission, he replied: "I can't tell you."

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by Every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

SPRINGFIELD SUN

Wednesday, June 20, 1906.

ISSUED EVERY WEDNESDAY.

SUBSCRIPTION, -- ONE DOLLAR.
(In Advance.)
J. ROGERS GORE, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at the postoffice at Springfield, Ky., for transmission through the mail as second-class matter.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS
HON. BEN JOHNSON, OF HARDSTOWN,
NELSON COUNTY.

FOR APPELLATE JUDGE,
HON. J. P. HOPSON, OF ELIZABETHTOWN,
HARDIN COUNTY.

CIRCUIT COURT CLERK.
We are authorized to announce
ROBERT NOE

As a candidate for Circuit Clerk of Washington county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The Evening Post says the lid was not on tight in Louisville last Sunday—that the front doors of the saloons were closed, but the back doors were wide open, and that the police permitted the bar-rooms to run in full blast. We hope the Post is mistaken about this matter, but we are afraid the story is true, even in detail. What are the people of Louisville except of a mayor who was forced by the Governor of the State to do his sworn duty? It goes without saying that he will play them many tricks. When Gov. Beckham forced Mayor Barth to issue that Sunday-closing-order the mayor of the great city of Louisville became the "smallest man in Kentucky," he "took his place" along side the child who is driven by the parent to do a certain thing; indeed he placed himself in a hill with "little teeny taters," and had the finger of all Kentucky pointed at him as a very small fry.

Since Gov. Beckham has forced an order from Mayor Barth that all saloons, theaters, etc., close their doors in Louisville on Sunday it is up to the Governor to see that they "stay closed," Barth, his gang of policemen and two-for-a-nickel Board of Public Safety to the contrary notwithstanding. Gov. Beckham owes it to himself, to the Democratic party, to the people of Louisville and to the State of Kentucky to see that the laws of the State are respected by that gang in Louisville, which for a long, long time has trampled law beneath its feet and thrown its profane slobberings in the very face of Justice.

Hon. C. C. McChord may become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. If he enters the race his friends here believe he will win. He is a clean man, and should be elected to the high office of Governor he could be depended upon to at all times stand as the champion of the common people. "Charlie McChord," as he is known to the people of the State, is popular with all classes, and is recognized as a thoroughly honest, and brainy man.

That Home-Coming edition of the Louisville Herald was one of the biggest things ever put through a printing press in Louisville. It will do to keep.

We have received the illustrated edition of the Anderson News. It is one of the prettiest we have ever seen, and is crowded with interesting matter. This magazine feature of the News will be worth hundreds of dollars to Anderson county, and it seems to us that the business men of Anderson ought to exert themselves in putting good things in the way of the News.

Curt Jett's confession is a sickening thing. Read the history of the "Dark Ages"—listen to the tales of the Romans in the days when Tiberias reigned, and you will find no story, charged even to blood-thirsty gladiators—deeper-dyed in bloods of horror, more thoroughly hell-timed—than this one told by Curt Jett.

The county of Henry, 1600 majority for local option, the city of Harrodsburg 303 for local option and the shouting of the multitudes from a dozen other counties now in the "midst of the fray," indicate pretty strongly that we are going to have a general "Basting up of Booby Burgs" throughout the whole State of Kentucky.

NOTICE! Public Sale!

Of Commissioner's Sale of Valuable Mill Property in Springfield, Ky.

In obedience to a decree of the Washington Circuit Court, rendered in the case of Theo. C. Campbell and others, plaintiffs, against John W. Jarboe and others, defendants, at the May-June term, 1906, I will at the court house door in Springfield, Ky., between the hours of 1 and 3 o'clock p. m., on

Beverly of Graustark

Beverly gave him a look of scorn, but without a second's hesitation placed the missile in Yette's hand. The Iron Count's jaw dropped, and he moistened his lips with his tongue two or three times. Something told him that a valuable chance had gone.

"I shall be only too happy to have your highness read the result of my first lesson in the Graustark language," she said, smiling gayly upon the count.

Two men in uniform came rushing up to the party manifestly excited. Raising the general, both began to speak at once.

"One at a time," commanded the count. "What is it?" Other officers of the guard and a few soldiers from the castle came up, out of breath.

"We have discerned signal fires in the hills, your excellency," said the men from the fort. "There is a circle of fire, and they mean something important. For half an hour they have been burning the crowd of faces. Her eyes fell upon Baldos, who suddenly appeared in the background. His face wore a hunted, imploring look. The next instant he disappeared among the shadows.

CHAPTER XX.

"THERE is no time to be lost," exclaimed the count. "Ask Colonel Bruse to report to me at the eastern gate with a detail of picked troops—a hundred of them. I will meet them there in half an hour." He gave other sharp, imperative commands, and in the twinkling of an eye the peaceful atmosphere was transformed into the turbulent, exciting rush of activity. The significance of the fire seen in the hills could not be cheaply held. Instant action was demanded. The city was filled with the confusion of alarm; the army was brought to its feet with a jerk that startled even the most impatient.

The first thing that General Marlanx did was to instruct Quinnox to set a vigilant watch over Baldos. He was not to be arrested, but it was understood that the surveillance should be but little short of incarceration. He was found at the barracks shortly after the report concerning the signal fires was told in plain language. General Marlanx had ordered a guard placed over him for the time being, pending the result of an investigation. Baldos confidently expected to be sent to a dungeon for his affront. He did not know that Grenfell Roly stood firm in his conviction that Baldos was a spy and was supported by others in high authority.

Marlanx was bottling his wrath and holding back his revenge for a distinct purpose. Apart from the existence of a strong, healthy prejudice in the guard's favor, what the old general believed and what he could prove were two distinct propositions. He was crafty enough, however, to take advantage of a condition unknown to Beverly Calhoun, the innocent cause of all his bitterness toward Baldos.

As he hastened from the council chamber his eyes swept the crowd of eager, excited women in the grand hall. From among them he picked Beverly and advanced upon her without regard for time and consequence. Despite her animation he was keen enough to see that she was sorely troubled. She did not shrink from him as he had expected, but met him with bold defiance in her eyes.

"This is the work of your champion," he said in tones that did not reach ears other than her own. "I prophesied it, you must remember. Are you satisfied now that you have been deceived in him?"

"I have implicit confidence in him. I suppose you have ordered his arrest?" she asked, with quiet scorn.

"He is under arrest," said she, with suggestion. "For your sake, and yours alone, I am giving him a chance. He is your protégé. You are responsible for his conduct. To accuse him of being the knave who placed you in an embarrassing position. There is a stinking rumor in court circles that you have more than a merely kind and friendly interest in the rascal. If I believed that, Miss Calhoun, I fear my heart could not be kind to him, but I know it is not true. He is a clever scoundrel, and there is no telling how much harm he has already done to Graustark. His every move is to be watched and reported to me. It will be impossible for him to escape. To save him from the vengeance of the army I am permitting him to remain in your service, ostensibly at least. His hours of duty have been changed, however. Henceforth he is in the night guard, from midnight till dawn. I am telling you this, Miss Calhoun, because I want you to know that in spite of all the indignity I have suffered, you are more to me than any other being in the world, more to me even than my loyalty to Graustark. Do me the honor and justice to remember this. I have suffered much for you. I am a rough, hardened soldier, and you have misconstrued my devotion. Forgive the harsh words my passion may have inspired. Farewell! I want off to undo the damage we all lay at the door of the man you and I saw together."

He was too quick to give her the chance to reply. A moment later he was mounted and off for the eastern gates, there to direct the movements of Colonel Bruse and his troops. Beverly drew at once to Yette's side for Baldos. She was confronted by a rather sober faced sovereign. The news of the hour was fast comforting to the princess and her ministers.

"You don't believe he is a spy?" cried Beverly, stopping just inside the door, presuming selfishly that Baldos alone was the cause for worry. She resolved to tell Yette of the conflict in the park.

"Dear me, Beverly, I am not thinking of him. We've discussed him jointly and severally and every other way, and he has been settled for the time being. You are the only one who is thinking of him, my dear child. We have weightier things to annoy us."

"Goodness, how you talk! He isn't annoying. Oh, forgive me, Yette, for I am the silliest, oddest, patterned goose in the kingdom! And you are so troubled. But do you know that he is being watched? They suspect him. So did I at first. I'll admit it. But I don't—now. Have you read the note I gave to you just now?"

"Yes, dear. It's just as I expected. He has known from the beginning. He knew when he caught Duke and me spying behind that abominable curtain. But don't worry me any longer about him, please. Wait here with me until we have reports from the troops. I shall not sleep until I know what those fires meant. Forget Baldos for an hour or two for my sake."

"You don't do things like that! I'm a awful brute, sure 'nough. I'll forget him for ever for your sake. It won't be hard! He's just a mere guard. Pooh! He's no Baloo."

Whereupon, re-entranced by Mrs. Anguish and the Countess Halfont, she proceeded to devote herself to the task of soothing and amusing the distressed princess while the soldiers of Graustark ransacked the moonlit hills. The night passed, and the next day was far on its way to sunset before the scouts came in with tidings. No trace of the mysterious signals had been found. The embers of the half dozen fires were discovered, but their builders were gone. The search took on the character of a game of hide-and-seek, and it was unavailing. Not even a stray dog was found. The so-called troupe of actors, around the mysterious circle, had been swallowed by the capacious solitude of the hills. Riders from the frontier posts to the south came in with the report that there was quiet in the threatened district. Davesbergen was quiescent, but with the readiness of a skulking dog.

There was absolutely no solution to the mystery connected with the fire on the mountain side. Baldos was questioned privately and earnestly by Lorry and Langlois. His reply was simple, but it furnished food for speculation and at the same time no little relief to the troubled leaders.

"It is my belief, Mr. Lorry, that the fire was kindled by brigands and not by my military foes. I have seen these fires in the north, near Apathina, and they were invariably meant to establish communication between separated squads of robbers, all belonging to one band. My friends and I on more than one occasion narrowly escaped disaster by prying into the affairs of these signallers. I take it that the squads have been operating in the south and were brought together last night by means of the fire. Doubtless they have some big project of their own sort on foot."

That night the city looked for a repetition of the fire, but the mountains were black from dusk till dawn. Word reached the castle late in the evening from Ganolok that an Apathina no-man's-land party had been reported to Edelweis the next day. The visit was a friendly but an important one. The nobleman was no other than the young Duke of Mirox, intimate friend of the unfortunate Prince Lorenz, who met his death at the hand of Prince Gae of his kind. He bore the badge of the prince which opposed the rightful plans of Princess Volga. His arrival in Edelweis was awaited with deep anxiety, for it was known that his news would be of the most important character.

Beverly Calhoun sat on the balcony with and with his bow after midnight. The sky was black with the clouds of an approaching storm. The air was heavy with foreboding silence. Twice from their darkened corner near the pillar they saw Baldos as he paced steadily past the castle on patrol, with Haddan at his side. Dreamily the watchers lay in a cool slumber, looking down upon the somber park and its occasional guardmen. Neither was in the mood to talk. As they rose at last to go to their rooms something within them through the air and dropped with a slight thud in the center of the balcony. The two young women started back in alarm. A faint light from Beverly's window filtered across the stone floor. "Don't touch it, Beverly!" cried the princess as the girl started forward with an eager examination. But Beverly had been thinking of the very object that now quivered before her in the dull light, saucy, aggressive and jauntily as it was the night when she saw it for the first time.

A long, slim red feather bobbed to and fro as if saluting her with sullenly fidelity. Its base was an orange, into which it had been struck by the hand that tossed it from below. Beverly grasped it with more ecstasy than was wont and then rushed to the stone railing. Yette looking on in amazement. Diligently she searched the ground below for the man who had sent the red message, but he was nowhere in sight. Then came the sudden realization that she was revealing a most unimpaired eagerness, to him as well as to the princess, for she did not doubt that he was waiting from the shadows below. She withdrew from the rail in confusion and fled to her bedchamber, followed by her curious companion. There were explanations—none of which struck speaker or listener as logical, and there were glances which completely simplified the situation. Beverly thrust the slim red feather into her hair and struck an attitude of indifference. And thus the story of her perversion impelled her to ignore Baldos when he passed her on his way to mess.

The Duke of Mirox came into the city hours after the time set for his arrival. It was quite dark when the escort sent by Colonel Quinnox drew up before the castle gates with the vision. The duke and his party had been robbed by brigands in the broad daylight and at a point not more than five miles from Edelweis. And thus the destruction of the signal fires was explained. Count Marlanx did not soon forget the triumphant look he received from Beverly when she told him the duke's mission. The duke announced to the princess and her friends that he was not an emissary from the Apathina government. Instead he was but little less than a fugitive from the wrath of Volga and the crown adherents. Earlier in the week he had been summoned before Volga and informed that his absence, for a few months at least, would deprive the principality of his services. The privilege was allowed him of selecting the country which he desired to visit during that period, and he coolly chose Graustark. He was known to have friendly feelings for that state, but no objections were raised. This friendship also gave him a welcome in Edelweis. Mirox was plainly in the position to Yette and the prime minister. He asked for protection, but declined to reveal any of the plans then maturing in his head. He was a man of war, and he was not in sympathy with the sovereign, was respected by the nobles, and he announced his willingness to take up arms against Davesbergen, but would in no way antagonize Apathina from an enemy's camp.

The duke admitted that the feeling band of his upper circles was extremely bitter toward Graustark. The old time war spirit had not died down. Apathina despised her progressive neighbor.

"I may as well inform your highness that the recent holds another and a deeper grudge against Graustark," he said to the audience chamber. "The nobles were no other than the young Duke of Mirox, intimate friend of the unfortunate Prince Lorenz, who met his death at the hand of Prince Gae of his kind. He bore the badge of the prince which opposed the rightful plans of Princess Volga. His arrival in Edelweis was awaited with deep anxiety, for it was known that his news would be of the most important character."

"I am only saying what is believed to be true by Apathina, your highness. It is reported that he joined you in the mountains in June and since has held a position of trust in your army."

"Would you know Prince Frederic if you were to see him?" quietly asked Lorry.

"I have not seen him since he was a

Out For Good.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—Senator Blackburn, whose duties as chairman of the Democratic caucus and Democratic leader at the Senate, have prevented him from attending the Home Coming, is receiving many letters daily asking whether he is, or will be, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky. The Senator's letters on the subject has about reached the one-thousand mark. This afternoon he was asked how he was going to answer them.

"For the answers I have had time to make," said Senator Blackburn, "I have informed my friends that I am not a candidate."

Continuing, he said: "I am not a candidate, and do not expect to become a candidate, for any office. I have a keen realization of what the Democrats of Kentucky have done for me, and my feeling of obligation is such that there is no office in the Commonwealth that I would not accept if it were the judgment of fellow Democrats that such action were necessary to save my party from defeat. There is nothing equivocal, in my attitude. I shall never seek another nomination. I shall never forget what I owe to people through whose generosity I have been favored with high official station, and anything I can do at any place or time to show my appreciation will be done gladly."

WILLISBURG.

Rev. Mullins delivered a very interesting sermon at this place last Sunday morning and evening.

Dr. G. W. Young lectured at this place last Sunday afternoon on local opinion. He had a large attendance and the lecture was fine. The audience made up a good contribution for the cause. There is scarcely any opposition here to the question of local opinion and your correspondent can't see why any good citizen of this county should be against local opinion. Whiskey has caused more trouble, sorrow and heartaches than any one thing we have ever had to deal with.

Little Wallace Bell's visiting her aunt, Mrs. Bettie Gibbs, at this place. Mesdames Sallie Sutherland and Mary Hughes spent one day of last week with Mrs. Lucy Grider.

Thomas Melvill sold to Hilton & Shewmaker a self-linder for $40.

We are all in favor of local opinion.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

Putting stuff down the throat takes "the stuff" out of the pocket.

Dr. H. W. Wiley, of the bureau of chemistry, declines to retract his assertion that 85 per cent. of all whiskey sold over the bars of the United States is adulterated.

The use of strong drink produces more idleness, crime, disease, want, misery, than all other causes put together—Lorton Times.

The Chicago Record-Herald is responsible for the statement that the following sign hangs over the door of a saloon in Portland, Ore.: "Drinks of all kinds, toasts. The best drink in the house is cold water."

If the saloons of this country should all be wiped from the face of the earth in a single day, the question is asked: "What will the drunkards wives do?" Well, they might start a laughing school. They would surely sing: "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

GOL. STEPHEN P. JOCELYN

Made a Brigadier General to Succeed Gen. Buchanan.

Washington, June 1.—The secretary of war authorized the announcement that it had been decided by the president to appoint Col. Stephen P. Jocelyn, who is the senior colonel of the line, now serving as a brigadier general, to succeed Gen. Buchanan, and Col. Walter T. Duggan, now on the Philippines First Infantry, to succeed Gen. Frank D. Baldwin. Both of these officers are civil war veterans, with excellent records.
